From the Word

“Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age.”

Matthew 28:19-20

Evangelism Issue: We Want People To See Jesus In Us

“So, what makes you Adventists different from other Christians?” the teenage boy asked as he wiped butter and corn juice from his chin. He and a few friends stood on the sidewalk in front of the Living Faith SDA Company church building, enjoying free roasted corn, watermelon and popcorn the members had prepared.

“We thought that offering a free corn roast could be another way of getting to know the community. Many of the neighbors came,” says Jane Mencheski. “God just opened the door for us to talk.” Several, like this teenage boy learned more about Seventh-day Adventists and the hope we have in Jesus.

“We’re in a neighborhood,” Jane continues. “The neighbors weren’t real happy when they learned a church moved into their neighborhood. But we visited them several times, taking fruit baskets to them and such, just to let them know that we were here to be their neighbors. At the corn roast, one of our neighbors, who happens to be a beekeeper, came by and offered to teach beekeeping to our Pathfinder club. He seems more comfortable with us being his neighbor now. Another said, ‘You should let us donate some money for the corn,’ and they did.”

During the past year, residents of Howard, a suburb of Green Bay, saw the Living Faith Company singing Christmas carols at Festival Foods while bell-ringing for the Salvation Army, delivering full Christmas dinners to six local families, and inviting friends to the one-day annual SNOWLIFT retreat for women. During a community-wide treasure hunt, Living Faith members washed tables at the local AmericInn, carried groceries for shoppers, and encouraged McDonalds employees by handing them candy and GLOW tracts at the drive-thru window. Over 60 people from the community came to enjoy a vegan meal prepared before their very eyes by culinary specialist and TV personality Chef Mark Anthony. Local children enjoyed a full week of day-long Vacation Bible School sessions led by Living Faith kids.

Living the Mission

The picture of a young quarterback sprinting across a field, then suddenly stopping to kneel in prayer, has sparked debate across the country. Tim Tebow, quarterback for the Denver Broncos, chooses to make his Christian faith known to the public—not only by his words, but also through his actions. Every game, win or lose, he kneels on the field for a moment of prayer. Until it was forbidden, he even wrote scripture references on his face paint. Tim Tebow has chosen to let His light shine before millions.

Our mission as Seventh-day Adventists is to let our light shine. On the football field, at the grocery store, or in the factory, we are called to demonstrate God's redeeming love.

We, as a church in Wisconsin, are spending this year focusing on "Living the Mission". Our mission is to demonstrate God's redeeming love. Living that mission means putting our arms and legs to the message of the Bible and letting it live through us. Three areas where we can do this come to mind:

Living the Mission with our God calls us to commune daily with Jesus through prayer and Bible study and grow deeper in relationship with Him. As we spend time with Him daily, He will transform us to reflect His character.

Living the Mission with our Church calls us to make the local church a place where people see our love for God and each other. As we live the love and truth of Jesus we find in the Bible, our churches will exude a cheerful, welcoming, and healthy atmosphere. His love will reach out through us and let people know they belong.

Living the Mission with our Community calls us to be more involved in our community. Join the local community choir, the Kiwanis club, or help at the food bank. As we get involved, we build relationships with people and have opportunities to share of Jesus' love. We will also become aware of people's needs and discover ways of meeting those needs.

Relationships are the building blocks of Christ's kingdom. As we build relationships, God will give opportunities to witness. He'll let us know the right time to invite new friends to health seminars, Bible studies, evangelistic meetings, etc.

Take some time this year to share Jesus' love with the neighbor down the road, the co-worker in the next office, or a classmate in school. Let's let our light shine wherever we are and trust God to lead us in "Living the Mission" this year.

Horace Gentle Discovers Power of Fasting & Prayer

"My wife and I began fasting and praying in 2010, and I wouldn't change this habit for anything," said Horace Gentle, member of Emmanuel Seventh-day Adventist Church. "It has changed the way I live, think and make decisions."

While reading the book, 40 Days: Prayers and Devotions to Prepare for the Second Coming, Gentle and his wife became convicted they should fast and pray. They chose to fast on Fridays, eating only a little fruit if needed between Thursday supper and Friday supper.

As the book suggested, they called people on their prayer list asking them how they could best pray for them. "One of the people I chose to pray for was my granddaughter who lives in Arizona," said Gentle. "I prayed for God to impress upon her heart to turn back to Him. That was all. Within a year she started going back to church." The Gentles continue to add names to their prayer list as God brings people and needs to mind.

Gentle says fasting and prayer has literally changed the way he thinks about everything. He feels it is essential to his life and has no plans to quit.

We Want People To See Jesus In Us Cover Story Continued

"We all want to live out the message of our church motto," says Dan Mencheske, Living Faith's company leader. "To live in such a way that those who know you, but don't know God, will come to know God because they know you. You never know when you are going to be planting a seed."

Living Faith has their first evangelistic meeting lined up to begin in March of 2012. At the end of each meeting, they will have small group sessions to keep things personal. The members are praying their community involvement will help people feel comfortable attending their church.

"We want to be such a light in our community that if our light was to be put out tomorrow, we would be missed by the community," says Jane. "We want people to see Jesus through us."

With Great Joy I Now Stand With Confidence

I am a cradle Catholic; my twin girls are sophomores at two of this country's highly regarded Catholic universities.

I watched all of the "Amazing Discoveries" seminars and can hardly contain my excitement for this upcoming presentation.

No one in my family knows this yet, but I will be celebrating the Sabbath this coming Saturday at the small Seventh-day Adventist church here in Sparta, Wisconsin... Suffice it to say, I am finally at peace, and bear witness to the truth of the Holy Spirit to provide me the answers that can be verified in the Holy Scriptures.

I thank God for all your broadcasts and the clarity of the information you offer to your viewing audience. I appreciate the delicacy with which you address the issues of the Roman Catholic church, but...the truth cannot be silenced.

With great joy I now stand with confidence in these final days. Bless you.

Deb Finds Courage At JC Penney

My name is Deb Pomplun. When digital TV took over, 3ABN was my only channel. I was fascinated and watched it all the time. My daughter christened it "God TV".

I work at JC Penney. Our biggest sale is on Saturday. I struggled with whether I should work. I earn the most during these sales, and felt I couldn't commit to Sabbath. I believed, but couldn't bring myself to tell my boss. Something must change if I was going to live sola scriptura.

One day a lady came in and asked about upcoming sales. Her name was Juanita Edge. I told her it was on Saturday. She said just as easily as can be, "Well, I wouldn't come in on Sabbath just to save money." It got me thinking, "That was so easy for her. Maybe it doesn't have to be a big production. Maybe you just say, 'This is how it is', and that's it!"

I changed my availability through the computer. I would no longer work on Saturday. It worked...for a while. Once again I found myself scheduled for Friday night.

This time I told my manager I was keeping the Biblical Sabbath and could not work. He apologized for scheduling me on Sabbath! I've had Sabbaths off ever since.

Others said, "Surely you'll work Saturday sales." I simply said, "JC Penney's or the Word of God...isn't the choice obvious?"

"Look at me!", I thought. "I'm just like Juanita calmly saying 'This is what I believe.'" She was that little bridge that carried me from watching "God TV" to acting on what I believe.

November 19, 2011, I was baptized in the Madison Community SDA Church. Now I do my best to follow Jesus and the Bible.

Anna's Birthday Party Raised Over $800

"Can you come to my birthday party? We're going to be jumping for chickens for Tanzania!" Anna's face beamed with eagerness.

Ten-year-old Anna Foll wanted her birthday to make a difference. Anna and her guests jumped rope and got sponsors to donate money for their jumping. Every $200 raised provided 10 chickens and a rooster for a family in Tanzania, enabling the family to sustain themselves. This was Anna's way of participating in the ADRA mission project her primary Sabbath school was doing.

"This is so much fun!" said Emily Flood, one of 10 jumpers at Anna's birthday party. Kids jumped rope forward and backwards, sideways and tandem. Several kids attempted complicated jumps such as long-rope jumping, criss-cross jumping, the egg-beater, Chinese wheel, scissors, double-dutch and the crougar.

All the jumps raised over $800—enough money to supply four Tanzanian families with chickens. "I had hoped this year's mission project could raise money to support one family," said Mr. Flood, primary leader for the Madison East Adventist church. "Anna's birthday party was really a great idea."

"I'm glad we made so much money for people in Tanzania," said Anna. "I feel happy."

Witnessing Through Sign Language

Charles Stevens, deaf since he was one year old, learned about the Seventh-day Adventist church while attending a sign language class at the Wisconsin Technical College in Rice Lake, WI.

Jan Wright, member of the Rice Lake Adventist church, met Charles while attending the same class. "I could tell he was interested in religion," said Jan. "So I began praying for him. As Charles was deaf and I was not, we found it mutually beneficial to practice signing to each other in class. Often we signed about Biblical topics".

Once when Jan and Charles were both early for class, they had a deep discussion about what happens when a person dies. Charles became very interested, as a close friend of his had recently died. "I shared with him that I was a Seventh-day Adventist, but had never invited him to church," said Jan. "That's why I was so surprised when he showed up at church one Sabbath morning."

Then Jan decided to give Charles a copy of the book The Great Controversy. He read it, loved it, and wanted to learn more about the Seventh-day Adventist church. He had been a member of several churches through the years, but sensed he needed something more. Charles began studying the Bible regularly with an Adventist church member who knows sign language.

On November 14, 2011, Charles was baptized into the Rice Lake Seventh-day Adventist church. "Charles isn't a bit bashful about sharing his new faith," said Jan. "He brought our signing teacher and another friend to witness his baptism. He continues to learn and share about the Bible every opportunity he gets."

Knocking on Doors in Green Bay

Wisconsin Youth for Christ (WYC) held a retreat on October 22, 2011, at the Green Bay Seventh-day Adventist church. WYC is an organization led by youth and young adults ages 16-35 who are passionate about Christ's soon coming. Ikram Panchal and Valmy Karemara, seminary students at Andrews University, spoke on the theme "Hold Fast". Hebrews 10 was the key scripture.

One of the more powerful experiences of the day was canvassing the surrounding neighborhood. A student, Jasper St. Bernard, shared his experience with us.

"We only had one or two hours for outreach that day. The outreach group I was working with got slightly turned around and felt led down a certain street. The first door we knocked on we met a man who did not look like a hopeful candidate. As we began to dialogue with him, he shared recent struggles that he was experiencing. He told us he was sensing the need to rededicate his life to the Lord. We asked if he was interested in studying the Bible and he was very interested. Before we started to pray together, he prompted us to stand in a circle and join hands! God is good!

"We also met another guy who had been thinking about visiting the Green Bay Seventh-day Adventist church. He had been enjoying watching 3ABN. Our interaction with him was interesting because it was not until he heard that we were Seventh-day Adventists that he relaxed and was willing to finish the survey. I pray he continues to follow God's prompting.

"I truly believe it was God directing our steps down that street that day. Jesus is still seeking and saving those that are lost."

I Want What Those Women Have

Two years ago, Pastor John Strehle began studying the Bible regularly with Dottie Almaroad. Dottie shared an apartment with her daughter, Terri Zamitalo.

Knowing when Pastor John was scheduled to come, Terri tried to not be around. She wanted nothing to do with the Bible study.

Sometimes when Pastor John arrived, Terri found herself at home. From the other room she could hear the Bible study.

Over time, Terri sensed a growing interest in what her mother and Pastor John were studying, especially after witnessing her mom's baptism. Terri recalls looking around at the women in the church. They looked so content. She thought, "I want what these women have." Now she wanted to study. Looking back, Terri says, "I know now what those women had, it was the love of Jesus in their heart."

Pastor John began studying the Bible with Terri. Soon however, he told her he was moving. Pastor, Nate Skaife would soon arrive and continue studying with her. Terri did not welcome this news. She continued the studies determined not to like Pastor Nate. In spite of her resolution, Terri finally decided Pastor Nate was all right.

Terri was baptized on December 17, 2010. "I haven't been happier in my whole life," declared Terri about her baptismal day. "It was beautiful. It was everything I expected and so much more! I don't think I have smiled that much in my entire life."

Looking back, Terri can see how the Holy Spirit has worked on her heart. Terri is currently enjoying ongoing Bible studies and sharing how God is working in her life.

Wisconsin Academy Trains For Service

“I never thought I’d be doing this,” says Miguel Gomez, a Wisconsin Academy sophomore as he disinfects a plastic toy bus and places it in a bag of cleaned toys. “It’s alright though. It’s for the kids.” He’s seated in the doorway of a cleaning closet at Kindred Kids, a non-profit lending library for children with differing abilities in Columbus, WI. Not far away, other students fold baby clothes, sweep, or talk with Wendy Simyab, the founder of Kindred Kids, about her work and how it benefits the community.

“We are thrilled to have the students from Wisconsin Academy help out,” says Wendy. “As an organization that relies on volunteers and donations, we’re happy whenever people are willing to give of their time, but I especially appreciate the students from Wisconsin Academy.”

This afternoon is only one among dozens of intentional service opportunities built into the Wisconsin Academy experience. So far this year, students have scrubbed and painted over 28 fire hydrants in the village of Fall River, participated in a 30-hour famine to raise money for hungry children in Haiti, raked leaves in residential neighborhoods, preached and given testimonies at churches across Wisconsin, and put on a live nativity pageant at the academy attended by over 750 people from the area. The list goes on.

“Serving others changes us too,” says first-year junior Andrea Fernandez. “It’s really helped me grow in faith and opened my mind up to God’s power. It’s like riding a bike with training wheels. You have a chance to practice and try things out.”

Both in the classroom and out, Wisconsin Academy is committed to establishing faith, building commitment, and training for service.

Walking Program Improves Health

Roberta Pratt credits Walk for Life as the major influence in her ability to lose over 100 pounds and gain control of her diabetes this past year.

“When I found out I was a diabetic, I knew I needed to change my diet and walk more,” said Pratt. “But I only walked occasionally. Then I joined Walk-for-Life. That helped me start walking regularly. The pounds began coming off, and my blood sugars came within a normal range without having to take shots anymore.”

Roberta and her husband, Wyatt, walk 30-35 miles each week. In nice weather, they walk around their neighborhood; in snow or rain they drive to the mall and walk, or simply walk around in their house. “We feel so much better if we walk every day,” said Roberta. “It’s a regular part of our lives now. We love it and encourage others to make exercise a regular part of their lives.”

Walk for Life is designed to help people start a regular exercise program through walking. It also accommodates those who are already active, and includes a large variety of physical activities including biking, swimming, jogging, gardening, and active sports. The goal is to join everyone’s miles together and walk the 24,901.5 miles around the world as a church family from January 1 to June 22.

It’s easy to begin. Start walking. Track your miles. Then submit your miles through your local church Walk-for-Life coordinator, or submit your miles online.

To learn more, or submit miles, go to wi.adventist.org and click on Walk-for Life. Enjoy the benefits of an active lifestyle and improved health!

CHIP Alumni Give Holiday Baskets

On December 20, 2011, alumni of the recent Coronary Health Improvement Program (CHIP) at The Shepherd’s House Adventist church made holiday gift baskets for five families in need.

“We delivered one basket to a family whose children attended Vacation Bible School (VBS) at our church last summer,” said Roxie Wertz, one of the eight CHIP alumni. “They thanked us and said they are looking forward to attending VBS again this summer.”

Another basket went to Pam Krueger’s neighbor, who has stage four cancer and less than six months to live. “She was so touched that she started crying,” said Pam, another CHIP alumna. Later she sent Pam a thank-you card saying, “This gift came at the perfect time...Your outreach program is making a difference in our community.”

The CHIP alumni group continues to meet monthly for fellowship and to encourage each other in healthful living.

Pathfinders Making Church Name Known

R-i-i-n-g ... R-i-i-n-g ...!

Pastor Isensee: "Hello, this is Pastor Lisa Isensee of the Monroe Seventh-day Adventist Church."

Caller: "You are the church group who hangs bags on our doors each year for food pantry donations, right?"

Pastor Isensee: "Yes, our youth group enjoys doing that for the community."

Caller: "My wife and I will be out of town during your food drive this year. How can we still give you a donation?"

Two community families made calls like this to the Monroe church this fall. They didn't want to miss the opportunity to contribute. "The amazing thing is that both parties had to search the phone book or web to find our church number," said Pastor Isensee, "That is fantastic name recognition for our church!"

Before the Monroe church plant began 10 years ago, there was no Adventist presence in Green County. Having a church and Pathfinder/Adventurer club involved in the community is helping people know who Adventists are.

This year the Monroe youth distributed over 900 food donation bags and collected 1835 pounds of food for their local food pantry.

Green Bay Pathfinders Thank City Officers

The Green Bay Pioneer Pathfinder club packed and delivered 25 bags of cookies, candy and GLOW tracts to the Green Bay Police and Fire departments the evening of December 5, 2011. Officer Chad thanked the Pathfinders and gave them a tour of the Police department. The Firemen expressed their appreciation and explained how the fire truck equipment works.

Divine Appointments

"Hello. Our youth group is collecting food for those in need this holiday season..." said the Living Faith Pathfinder to a lady outside an apartment complex.

"I would love to help, but I am in need myself," she responded.

As she shared her story, the Pathfinders realized this lady did need help. They prayed, hugged her and promised to come back. "Thank-you so much," she said with tears in her eyes.

"We left her house and were on our way," said Jane Mencheski, Living Faith Pathfinder leader. "But we were not the same. Every divine appointment like that changes you. We have kept contact with this lady, delivered a Christmas box of food for her family, and plan to invite them to join us in church activities."

Living Faith Pathfinders collected a vanload of food to share with the Green Bay SDA Community Service Center.

Habenicht Retires After 44 Years of Service

Cherry and I see so many blessings of the Lord in our lives. We have been active in the church since our youth. Now we are retiring after 44 years of serving in pastoral, educational and administrative ministry. For 26 of those years we worked with the wonderful people of Wisconsin.

We pastored in the Chicago suburb of Hinsdale for eight years. My wife and I prayed, "Lord, this is an amazing church to help lead, but we'd like to raise our children in the country." God answered that prayer with a call to pastor the Wisconsin Academy district, which included the Watertown church.

After 7 years pastoring the Wisconsin Academy church, during which we helped plant a church in Beaver Dam, I was asked to join the conference staff. I've served over 19 years as corporation secretary and director of the Trust, Stewardship and Religious Liberty departments. I also served as pastor of the Oakland Church during a few of those years.

Cherry worked as communication director for the conference and transitioned from part to full-time teaching and counseling at Wisconsin Academy where she worked for 15 years.

Wisconsin is home, and we have no plans to move now that we are retiring. Our three children and their families live close; Lisa (Isensee) and Ray in Wisconsin and Hans in Iowa.

I will be working part-time for Adventist World Aviation. We also hope to get a little more time with our grandchildren and to work on "back burner" projects.

Richard Habenicht
Trust/Stewardship/Religious Liberty Director

Ochs New Women's Ministry Coordinator

Gladys Ochs is the new Women's Ministries Coordinator for the Wisconsin Conference. Born and raised in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Gladys currently lives in Green Bay, with her husband, Bill.

"I love women's Bible study groups," said Gladys, who herself became a Seventh-day Adventist through a small group study. "Small groups are a great way to study the Bible and get to know your neighbors. You can't reach people for Jesus if you don't know them."

Gladys works for a dental insurance company in customer service. She and Bill have three grown children, Jerry, John and Shelly. Gladys likes to sew, cross-stitch, cook and ride her bicycle. She also enjoys teaching youth Sabbath school and telling children's stories.

Stauffer New Fox Valley Interim Pastor

Pastor Bob Stauffer began serving as interim pastor for the Fox Valley church district on January 1, 2012. He and his wife, Alma, come from Bismark, North Dakota, where he pastored for the past six months.

Stauffers retired in 2010. They spent 19 years of their pastoral career in Wisconsin. Many people remember him for his yearly mission trips, being primary leader at camp meeting, and his deep love for the Lord. "The aim of my ministry is built on two quotes," said Stauffer. "Everyone who has this hope in Him purifies himself, even as He himself is pure,' I John 3:3, and 'Satan is ready to steal away the blessed assurance of Jesus.' In the light of these two quotes my goal is to give people hope."

Bob met Alma while colporteur in Kansas. Alma was one of his students. They now have four adult children, Mark, Amber, Tadd and Crystal.

Isensee New Church Planting Coordinator

Lisa Isensee is the new Church Planting Coordinator for the Wisconsin Conference. Lisa recently planted and pastored the Monroe Seventh-day Adventist church, and has served as church planting coordinator in Wisconsin in years past.

She is married to Richard Isensee and they have four children, Anthony, Katherine, Elizabeth and Victoria.

Lisa plans to provide training, resources, pastoral coaching, rallies and prayer initiatives to create a positive culture for planting churches. Lisa describes her vision:

Ten years ago, God put a burden on my heart for church planting. There were no Seventh-day Adventist churches in our county. One woman had taken Voice of Prophecy Bible lessons by mail, but there was no Adventist church. Later, she moved to Monroe, and joined our church plant--exactly 50 years after first learning of the Sabbath.

There are many places around our state, with no Adventist church. Jesus said, "Behold, I say to you, lift up your eyes and look at the fields, for they are already white for harvest!" (John 4:35) Ellen White wrote, "I saw jets of light shining from cities and villages, and from the high places and the low places of the earth. God's word was obeyed, and as a result there were memorials for Him in every city and village." Testimonies for the Church, Vol. 9, p. 28.

As the new church planting coordinator, I have one request, "Please, pray for laborers!"

Find out more about church planting at wi.adventist.org, or contact Lisa at churchplants@tds.net.
