Larry Stotz: Passing on an Interitance of Faith

Larry Stotz with his wife, Cindy, and one of their four daughters, Julie. Larry is owner of Stotz and Company, an accounting and bookkeeping firm in Grantsburg, WI.

My story starts before I was born. I know that everyone else's story does too, but I refer to circumstances that occurred while I my mother was at the end of her second trimester of pregnancy with me.

In September of 1954, while I was yet three months from seeing the world for the first time, my father fell ill with polio. He spent two years in the hospital, and when released, was able to walk only with the assistance of a brace and crutches.

Now this obviously had a dramatic effect on the way we grew up as a family. A farmer before his illness, he now by necessity must find another way to support his family. Vocational rehabilitation in the hospital indicated that accounting and bookkeeping were an interest that he could cultivate, and indeed he found work in those areas. So, instead of a country boy growing up on the farm, all I ever knew was as a small town boy with activities that a disabled father could provide.

And provide he did, not only financially, but spiritually, mentally, emotionally, the whole package. There was never an attitude about his disability, so we grew up knowing only that our life was a good one. I know there were things that I missed which only physically active parents could provide, but as a boy I knew only the joys of those things we were able to enjoy together.

My mother also participated in this lack of attitude about dad's disability. Circumstances of the illness and all the changes that came with it could have made bitterness a part of our life, but such was not the case.

Both of my parents grew up Seventh-day Adventist, with their parents active in the local church at Frederic, WI. I was raised understanding that church services, church activities, and church family were a very important part of our life.

My siblings, Kathy and Alan, and I were all sent to Wisconsin Academy (WI) for all four high school years, allowing us to create lifetime friends. I met my wife, Cindy at WA, although we did not connect until a few years later at an alumni gathering.

Cindy and I have been married for 35 years come October, 2014. Our family has been blessed with five daughters (Julie, Jennifer, Janelle, Jessica, and Johanna), two of which are married. We have also been blessed with two grandchildren.

Each of our children has gone through the Frederic Seventh-day Adventist Church School, and after the first two years of high school (taken by correspondence), each graduated from WA. Forty years minus one (Julie’s first year was before the church school was started) of church school, ten years of WA, and years and years of Adventist college education (still counting).

I believe that faithful tithing and giving of offerings over our entire life has blessed Cindy and I; how else could we explain all the dollars invested in Christian education?

Our hope is that all that we have invested in our church, our children’s schooling, and the raising of our family in general will allow us to share time as a complete family in heaven someday soon.

“Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul. Love him with all your strength. The commandments I give you today must be in your hearts. Make sure your children learn them. Talk about them when you are at home. Talk about them when you walk along the road. Speak about them when you go to bed. And speak about them when you get up.” Deut. 6:5-7

DIVINE ASSURANCES

Wonderful possibilities are open to those who lay hold of the divine assurances of God’s Word. There are glorious truths to come before the people of God. Privileges and duties which they do not even suspect to be in the Bible will be laid open before them. As they follow on in the path of humble obedience, doing His will, they will know more and more of the oracles of God....

The soul dwelling in the pure atmosphere of holy thought is transformed by intercourse with God through the study of His Word. Truth is so large, so far reaching, so deep, so broad, that self is lost sight of. The heart is softened and subdued into humility, kindness, and love...

From my mother... not so much by words, but by her Christian example. Since I was very young, I have silently observed how she does everything with the love of Christ in her heart. Her faith never wavers. I weave her example into my personal life and recognize that if I have Christ in my heart, He will take care of everything!

Rug Braiding at ACS Cabin

Nearly 30 women crowded into the Adventist Community Services cabin on Tuesday morning to hear Alice Garrett explain how to braid oblong step rugs from strips of old denim jeans. “I think I could do that,” said one lady, “and I’m not very crafty.” Find information on making rugs at materials@countrybraidhouse.com. Stop by the ACS cabin and see what they are doing next.
