Pennie Wredberg: Singing the Words of Scripture

I stood in line, waiting to congratulate one of Wisconsin Academy's newest graduates. The gym was full of people, loud and stuffy, and the graduate hadn't made it to her table yet. Then we saw her coming, so happy, and she started hugging people and everyone was laughing and crying, celebrating the moment. I was pushed to the background, not able to talk to her and tell her how happy I was for her.

As I stood there and watched, wishing for just a small moment of her time, I was struck by the fact that this is how I treat Jesus. I let other things crowd ahead of Him, giving my attention to what is most current, pressing, or begging for my attention.

Several years ago I read about an author who would read one chapter a day from one of the Gospels. Even in my busy life as a teacher, one chapter a day is very doable. So I began. I started with Matthew, went on to Mark, then Luke and John. When I was done, I did it again. And again. It was wonderful. A picture of Jesus emerged that went deeper and wider than what I had seen before.

Now I see Jesus as a revolutionary, challenging the accepted beliefs. I see Him as always taking the time to give everyone His undivided attention. I see Him as a teacher so filled with wisdom that His stories are understood by children and yet with truths not completely comprehended by the most studied theologians.

But the most important picture that emerged was love, inconceivable love. Jesus loves the misfits, the impulsive Peter, the thief Zaccheaus, the adulterous woman covered with shame, and even the betrayer Judas. He loves those I would dismiss. He is love, so much love!

I wanted the words of Jesus with me all the time. I wanted those words to be in my heart so I could be more like Him. I decided to start memorizing Scripture – whole chapters. However, I couldn't seem to do it. The verses would be there one day, but not the next.

Then I started using Scripture songs in my classroom. Kindergarten was going to memorize a verse for every letter of the alphabet and the older students were going to learn Psalm 1. We started and would sing the songs every day and pretty soon all of us knew a song for every letter of the alphabet and Psalm 1.

Ellen G. White Devotional
AUDIENCE WITH GOD

In searching the Scriptures, in feeding upon the words of life, O consider it is the voice of God to the soul.

We may be confused sometimes over the voice of our friends; but in the Bible we have the counsel of God upon all important subjects which concern our eternal interests, and in temporal matters we may learn a great deal. Its teaching will be always suited to our peculiar circumstances and calculated to prepare us to endure trial and fit us for our God-given work.

Now I recommend this as a method to my students. It is so much easier for us to remember a song. My students will come back and tell me later that they sang one of our songs when they had gotten into an argument with their parent, or couldn't remember something for a test. Having those words helped them.

Dear Jesus, help me to always put You first. Help me to carry Your words in my heart wherever I go.

WISCONSIN ACADEMY ANNOUNCES NEW STAFF MEMBERS

Wisconsin Academy and the Wisconsin Conference Board of Education are pleased to announce the selection of new staff members for the 2014-2015 school year. Several of them are visiting camp meeting this weekend to get acquainted with their new Wisconsin Conference family.

Fred Dana will be serving as guys' dean. He comes to us from the Michigan conference where he most recently pastored a 3-church district. Before that he taught Bible at Great Lakes Adventist Academy. He also has experience as an academy dean and chaplain.

Lorrie Dana, Fred's wife, will be serving as registrar and secretary to the principal. She has experience serving as secretary for state government and for Adventist schools. Fred and Lorrie have two grown children, a son and a daughter.

Sarah Hillebert will be serving as girls' dean. She has served as hall mom for the past 3 years and has become well acquainted with many of the girls. She is an RN and will be the school nurse. Sarah and her husband, Bob, have two young sons.

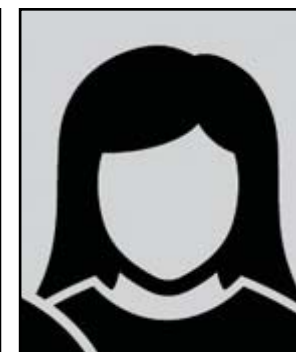

Tyler Cantrell will be serving as history teacher. He was a major developer of an online history course for Griggs University. As a certified FEMA instructor and mission project enthusiast, he has traveled in over 36 countries.

Kelly McWilliams will be serving as science teacher. She comes to us from Great Lakes Adventist Academy. She has worked as a research biologist and has a reputation for excellent teaching. She enjoys competing in triathlons.

LaQuita Anderson will be serving as assistant business manager, and will also work half time at the Wisconsin Conference office. She comes to us from Great Lakes Adventist Academy. She has a son and a daughter at Andrews.

Johana Vargas will be commuting from Madison area to serve as the Spanish teacher. She has experience teaching Spanish as a second language in the British Virgin Islands and English as a second language in Colombia.

We are excited about the ways God continues to lead His school. We ask for your prayers as Wisconsin Academy continues to serve the constituents of Wisconsin Conference by establishing faith, building commitment, and training for service.

If you have questions or just want to talk, feel free to stop by the Wisconsin Academy cabin.
