Scripture Enigma

In the water, in the air, and in the busy brain,
Busy once, but nevermore to hate or love again;
One of five, all like itself, in deadly deed united,
And yet delivering those in whom the Lord of Hosts delighted.

CAMP LAMP

Sunday, June 19

The Legacy Fathers Leave

We asked, "What has your dad taught you that you've been able to take with you through life?" Here are the answers we received.

The main thing I learned from Dad was that people come first. He owned a business, and always asked customers about their life before business. He'd say, "How's your garden?" or "How's the family?" Then he would get around to, "Now, what can I do for you today?" People loved him.

Linda Chism, camp meeting nurse

My dad taught me to always be honest, have integrity, always put things away when I'm done with them, and to love God.

Jim Johnson, camp ranger

Have a happy spirit. Practice what you preach. Be a friend to kids. Never be dishonest. These are not quotes. They are ways dad consistently conducted his life that have seeped into my philosophy.

Aileen King, conference office secretary

A love for the truth. Singleness of purpose to see God's work finished. Attitude to do your best and don't quit until the job is finished. Love of God's creation. Hope in a soon coming Savior.

Brian Stephan, executive secretary/treasurer

After seeing me almost get killed by running out in front of a car at age 5, dad scooped me into his arms and proceeded to spank me as never before saying, "Always look first!" Endeavoring to obey those words through the years has kept me out of many kinds of danger.

Susan Boon, women's retreat director

Always start the day with Jesus! Eat what you get and don't complain.

Matthew Taylor, son of Greg Taylor, youth director

Be nice. Share. Let other people go first. Don't complain or ask for more stuff. Be content with what you've got.

Elisha McKenzie, son of Marshall Mckenzie, pastor

Be honest! No lies. If you do something wrong, make it right with God and tell someone you trust. It's cleansing.

Leny Plank, food service director

Mike Edge with his father, Dan Edge

Dad was like a Swiss clock when it came to morning devotionals. He would not miss calling the family for worship every morning at six o'clock. You could set your clock by it.

Carlos Ancheta, pastor

"Dad always said, "Keep your word and pay your bills." A business man once told me, "I'd trust my life to your father."

John Glass, pastor

When I was a teenager going out on a date, dad handed me the keys with the words, "Remember you're an Edge." He was challenging me to have positive Christian values. The integrity he lived in his personal life still challenges me today.

Elder Mike Edge, president

Take some time today to remember what your father has, or is, giving you, and thank him!

Happy Father's Day!
