Learning to Listen; Trusting Our Hope

Nelson Boon and his wife, Susan, at camp meeting 2013. Nelson serves as head elder in the Raymond SDA Church, and is retired from contract management work. He and Susan have three grown children and seven grandchildren.

The evening started as a "typical" Saturday night, November 24, 2012, approximately 7:00 pm. I developed a persistent discomfort in my mid-abdomen, much like indigestion. As the evening continued, the indigestion sensation convinced me that it might be well to go to bed early, so I "turned in" at 8:30 pm.

I had a recurring thought that night: CHIP teaches that the first indication of a heart blockage is sudden death. Yet I have been a healthy vegetarian since my teens, and no pain radiated to my arms and legs.

By morning I felt better. I told my wife, "I think that may have been a heart attack last night." Suddenly, Susan and our daughter insisted I go to the hospital right away. Finally, on Monday morning, I agreed to go to the emergency room. A false sense of security told me that I would be returning home right after being checked.

The hospital staff determined irregularities in my blood and heartbeat. Surgery was scheduled. I was still in denial while lying on my back in the operating room, but I prayed, "Lord, please get me through this." After the angioplasty heart procedure, surgeons disclosed that the main heart artery had 95% blockage and a second heart artery had 70% blockage.

I am learning to listen when God speaks. He speaks to each of us at appropriate times, and He often speaks through our loved ones and friends. I am grateful my first warning of heart blockage was not death, and I am grateful to have a good wife and family.

It is clear to me that God preserved my life for His purposes. This side of my heart attack, Susan and I are even more attentive to God's leading.

Nelson Boon

MEET OUR SPEAKERS
DR. DAVID TRIM

Morning Speaker: 9:30

Dr. David Trim, director of archives and statistics for the General Conference, received his BA from Newbold College before attending King's College in London, where he wrote a PhD dissertation on English involvement in the European religion wars of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

From 1998 to 2007 Trim was on the faculty at Newbold College, teaching history and theology. Until the end of 2009 he was the Walter C. Utt Visiting Professor of History and Religion at Pacific Union College. His publications include books on military and religious history, 30 scholarly papers, and articles in Seventh-day Adventist publications such as Liberty Magazine and The Adventist Review.

David is married to Wendy and they have one grown daughter, Genevieve.

God Provides Scholarships

Linda Rosen, Education Superintendent, gave out five $500 elementary scholarships Sabbath afternoon during the Education Hour. This random scholarship drawing for those present at the meeting was possible because of several generous donations. "Every awarded family really needed the money. This was a random drawing, but it wasn't random for God."

Madison Sanitarium

At the Madison camp meeting in 1881, Elder and Mrs. White urged the building of a sanitarium, as Madison had no hospital.

In 1899, two nurses from Battle Creek and another couple, the Bramhalls, leased an old clubhouse at 118 Monona Ave. for treatment rooms. The venture grew, and soon a line of health foods and restaurant were added.

The Wisconsin Conference then voted to build a hospital. They bought five acres on the south shore of Lake Monona, built a three-story building and on June 7, 1903, Dr. J. H. Kellogg gave the dedicatory address.

Horse-drawn busses brought people to the sanitarium, until management purchased a steamboat which made four trips a day bringing people from Madison. Many congressmen from the capitol came for treatment, and nursing care was provided for the wealthy Barnum and Bailey family at Baraboo.

Question of the Day

HOW DO YOU SHARE HOPE WITH PEOPLE IN YOUR LIFE?

Bessie Kmiecik

I try to be cheerful and upbeat in my dealings with others and talk about God's blessings if given a chance. I offer to pray for people and share Bible promises with them.

Jan Lanaville

Through praying with others, being humble, grateful and walking each day with Jesus.

Carroll Wheeler

Being willing to help others gives hope.

Bert Wredberg

By modeling the hope I have and pointing to the One who gave it.

John Ramsey

The best way that I share hope with people in my life is to share with them all of the blessings that He has given me.

Jackie Goss

In our business we hand out the Great Controversy and leave spiritual books on end tables. Before leaving many ask, "Can we have this book?"

Primary's Long-Term Impact

"Do you still have that lady here who did Wiley the Wolf?" asked a 20-year-old walking by the Primary tent this week. This ex-Primary is one of many who have fond memories of Primary division at camp meeting. A girl came this year wearing an Egyptian head piece made during Primary crafts last year. Others requested a story Pastor Fox told two years ago. Primary leaders, your work is not in vain.

Unicycling For All Ages

After lunch on Monday, Robert Grimm, age 70, couldn't resist the urge to borrow one of the kid's unicycles and take it for a spin. Grimm, member of the Richland Center church, bought his first unicycle at a garage sale in his late 30's. Just last year he bought himself a new one. "It's fun and great exercise," says Grimm. "Like riding a bicycle, once you have it you find you can still do it."
